Performance Hiring Process

John D. Morris, President of Strategic Consulting Japan is a Lou Adler Certified Performance-based Hiring Recruiter, and is involved from start to finish with each and every search.

By utilizing Lou Adler's Performance-based hiring tools and methodologies ensures our clients that we are diligently screening, and only introducing only the best available candidates in the market. Our searches are not executed with randomness or luck, we have a clear and concise strategy to each and every search.

Due to our strategic approach, we are typically approached to fill "critical" and/or "confidential" searches.

Advanced Search Process

Strategic Consulting Japan offers the most advanced and methodical approach to each and every search.

Our process begins by developing a "Performance-based Profile"; then we map out the market to identify the best professionals, these candidates are then thoroughly screened before the role is introduced; if the prospective candidate is not qualified, then the company information is not disclosed. Note: All prospective candidates are required to sign an NDA.

We are a client centric, executive search firm, consequently our objective is not to simply fill jobs orders with any professional, rather it's to build companies with the best professionals. Our process is so effective, that we offer our clients a one year replacement warranty for all our hires.

Quality

Strategic Consulting Japan offers our clients the most highly developed search and consulting processes within the industry.

We focus on "quality" rather than volume, we do not compete with the contingent staffing firms which are driven by volume; our objective is to focus on searches that truly impact a company's bottom line.

Our clients receive the highest level of search processes available in market. We offer our clients reporting and tools which will satisfy even the most particular hiring manager - and more importantly will help facilitate a better hire each and every time.

Reporting schedules are predetermined upon the onset of each search, and reporting is not simply a method of demonstrating search activity, but rather a tool used to report back to our clients "real" activity as well as market feedback. Our goal is to fill roles with the best available candidate(s) the market can offer.

Critical & Confidential Search

Confidential Search

Why is confidentiality important, and how does Strategic Consulting Japan manage this process effectively?

If an employee finds out they are being replaced, this can cost a company two year's in compensation or more.

In other cases, some companies don't want their competitors to know what they are doing in the market, especially in niche industries.

Keeping the market quiet while identifying the best talent for an organization is always our priority, and a service we excel at.

When executing a "confidential" replacement, we don't utilize any advertising, and the opportunity is only introduced in person to on-spec, interested candidates who have been thoroughly screened. All viable candidates are required to sign an NDA prior to disclosing our client's information.

Talented passive candidates respect this process and realize that we are also treating their private information with the same confidentiality.

Critical Search

Do you have critical hiring needs for your Japan business? Will hiring a nonperforming professional impact your bottom line?

Have you recently lost an important member of your team, are you expanding your team in Japan, or entering into a new market segments?

We have supported many companies their with "critical" hiring requirements, these are hires are either time-sensitive, or so important to their organization they require a dedicated expert to support the hiring process in a professional and accountable way.

Utilizing the "contingent" process leaves the hiring to chance without accountability to identifying the right professional in a timely fashion.

Our clients engage with us as every hire is important to the success of their business.

We limit the number of clients, and searches we execute at any given time, our strategy is to partner with our clients and offer an extremely high level of service with the best available talent available within the Japan market.

Industry Practices

On September 15th, 2008, Lehman Brothers filed for bankruptcy, this led to a financial meltdown of unparalleled proportion, which in turn has initiated a paradigm shift in the way most industries and companies will operate forever. The market has become increasingly competitive; consequently, technology and professional services companies are experiencing new business challenges beyond the traditional challenges such as: globalization, branding, pricing and discerning customers. We are breaking new ground, attracting, maintaining and motivating key talent is the single most important task of any successful business leader in today's global arena.

In Japan, the Industrial field is one of the most difficult verticals to attract talent. This field is ultra conservative, and many companies are not able to attract talent with substantial salary increases, which is often the case within the IT, Finance and the Life Science fields. Consequently identifying and moving talented Industrial professionals is no easy task. With limited available talent, keeping the market quiet is important to successfully execute these searches. Inexperienced recruiters and contingent search firms mess up the market with boiler room tactics, including: mass marketing. At SCJ we know how to successfully execute search within this challenging vertical.

With Japan's aging population there has been an increased demand for medical devices and pharmaceuticals. Japan's main Life Science business challenge is due to increased regulatory scrutiny and compliance requirements. The Life Science field is quite incestuous, however moving HiPo talent from one firm to another requires business expertise and skill, this is an area where we shine; we are consultants, not headhunters and are able to attract HiPo passive professionals. Strategic Consulting Japan focuses on three main areas within the Life Science field including; medical devices, diagnostics, pharmaceuticals and biotechnology.
